Chancellor Willy Brandt

By David Binder

BONN, Feb. 1 (NYT).— Chancellor Willy Brandt has marked his 100th day in office with a significant domestic-policy decision by his cabinet to liberalize West Germany's laws against political demon-ed the Justice Ministry on Thursday to draft an amnesty for more than 4,000 demon-strators—mostly youths—appre-hended for crimes of violence during political protests in the last five years.

One of the chancellor's aides commented afterward that the decision had been made "to demonstrate that this is a liberal government." Another current concession to this country's politically minded youth is the lowering of the voting age from 21 to 18. Despite the hectic pace set in foreign policy-marked, for example, by Friday's visit to Paris-Mr. Brandt has repeatedly stated from the outset of his administration on Oct. 21 that he wants to be known as "a chancellor of domestic reform" and greater democratization of West German society. Evidence of Polls

There is ample evidence from opinion polls that the West German public is more interested policies than in Mr. Brandt's efforts to improve relations with European Communist countries. Consumer price rises of 3 percent, wage rises of 11 per-cent and a production growth rate reaching 10 percent are also the indicators by which Mr. Brandt's Social Democratic-Free Democratic coalition expect to be measured at the polls in state elections later this year. Yet in a television debate Thursday, the chancellor manifested visible relief when the theme switched from his domestic problems to his favorite field, foreign policy.

Replying to a statement by stability and calm. This is true of the economy, which, though still in an inflationary phase, faces a coolingoff period prompted by Pinance Minister Alex Moller's decision last week to freeze budget expenditures in many areas until June. It is also true of the society as a whole.

There have been no marches on Bonn by economic groups, no wildcat strikes and no notable student demonstrations as in previous months and years. Even Mr. Brandt's bitterest foes in the Christian Demo-cratic Union opposition party and in the conservative press of Axel Springer have conceded in recent days that West Germany is socially calm and economically stable. Mr. Moller's budget freeze and the government's other inflation-curbing moves have drawn the kind of praise from the business community that it used to give only to the most conservative economic policymakers.

The opposition has concentrated almost all its fire on Mr. Brandt's attempts to start "normalization" dialogues with the Russians. Poles and East Ger-This is not to say that the acknowledges that West Ger-many will need almost double its present college-university capacity of 300,000 students by the end of the decade.

The Brandt administration has raised the 1970 federal budget outlay on education and science by 36 percent to $850 million in anticipation of future needs. But the budget freeze will delay construction of new universities. The same is true for hospital construction and other social projects.

Holidays Cited

Mr. Brandt has been telling newsmen that, because of Christmas vacation and other German holidays since Oct. 21, it is unfair to judge him by his first 100 days.

But his press office has issued a six-page brochure documenting what his administration has accomplished in the fields of economic policy, education, social welfare, health, justice and foreign affairs. It is a respectable list, but it does not reflect the larger and longer-range reform goals of the chancellor. However, opinion polls show his Social Democratic party at least 6 percent shead of the opposition conservative parties in popularity, which gives him and his Free Democratic partners ground for hope that their IMAS 747: Its a lot more than a great big Boeing.

The 747 is a magnificent aircraft.

In spite of its size, it gets off the ground faster, flies faster, and has quieter engines than conventional jets.

It is guided by the same type of navigational system that brought the Apollo Spacecraft to the moon.

And it lands as softly as a bird on a branch.

Even though it is capable f carrying 500 passengers, TWA's ersion will carry only 342, less han any other major transatlantic "irline.

This means that TWA passengers

mier vill have more room.

There are six kitchens offering passengers a choice of main courses.

Five theaters will play two different films

during the flight. On a wide screen and in color.

The seats are roomier, and a special cushioning device conforms to the curve of your back.

In first class, there is a spiral staircase leading to a luxurious observation lounge and stand-up bar.

But the beautiful thing about the TWA 747 is what happens when you land in New York.

TWA is the only airline that has built a 747 terminal that is really ready for international passengers.

It's called Flight Wing One and it's part of the Saarinen-designed TWA Flight Center already recognized as one of the architectural jewels of this century.

The planes will taxi right up to the terminal. Hydraulic powered jetways will take you right from the cabin into Flight Wing one.

And because we have our own Customs facilities, you will be able to avoid the crush at the International Arrivals Building where every other international airline must deposit its passengers.

A moving sidewalk will take you from our customs area to our main terminal.

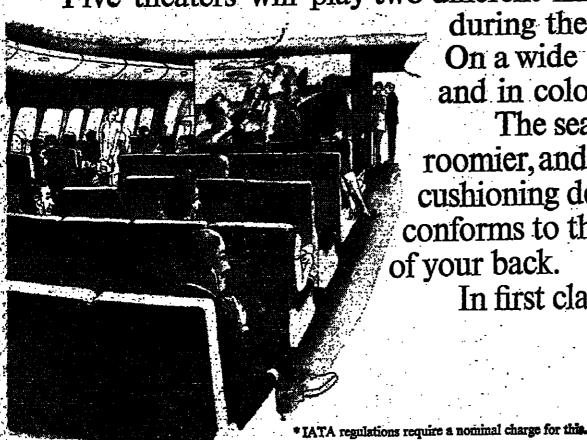

And all of this is part of every TWA 747 flight to New York.

You'll have to agree: that's a lot of plane.

This is America: This is TWA

The Basic Economic Issue

The Economic Report of the President is a remarkably explicit and useful document. It discloses the strategy of the Nixon administration for checking inflation and avoiding a serious recession in the coming year. It describes a rather shallow valley of memployment that the economy must cross in the next two years. It looks across to the other side of that valley, where it sees a promised land of 4.3 percent growth, 3.8 percent imemployment, and negligible inflation.

Even on the other side of the valley, however, the report indicates resources are going to be limited, and the nation will have to make hard choices if there is to be any fundamental reordering of national priorities. In a nutshell, it says resources are already spoken for. There is not going to be any big fiscal dividend to be used for public programs beyond those for which the President has already spoken. People can have more government programs only if they are willing to give up some private consumption or housing or business investment.

But on this side of the valley, life still has its turbulence and disorder. In the first year of the Nixon administration inflation accelerated. Interest rates reached their highest levels since the Civil War and housing construction plummeted. Labor productivity. which had been rising steadily for a decade, turned downward. Major collective hargaining agreements averaged 8.2 percent higher and unit labor costs increased 7 percent, the sharpest jump since 1951. Profits declined and the stock market sank. The growth in real national output stopped.

One major fault in the position of the President is that he disowns any responsibility for this combination of events. The inflation was the consequence of the preceding five years of mismanagement by the opposition party, he insists. Certainly it is true that Mr. Nixon inherited an inflationary economy. But the new administration committed errors of its own.

The President's declaration that he would not intervene in wage and price decisionsreiterated in Friday's press conference—undoubtedly contributed to the acceleration of inflation. Ideology makes it difficult to reyerse this position on iswhoning or wage-price guideposts. But the Council of Economic Advisers acknowledges "government has a considerable influence on conditions of demand and supply and consequently on prices in particular markets" and that government should try to correct "malfunctions" in particular markets.

The administration was too hasty in committing itself to tax reduction last year. It has now sought to correct its fiscal errors by producing a very tight budget-the expenditure of $200.8 billion will mean a rise of only $3 billion over the preceding year. But the projected budget surplus of $1.3 billion does not appear to measure up to the President's own objective of achieving a surplus large enough to permit an early easing of monetary restraint. His economic advisers have cautioned that the rate of monetary expansion is particularly difficult to determine because of uncertainty about the adjustment of the economy to lower demand.

The word gradualism has disappeared from the lexicon of the Nixon administration. But the attack on inflation described in this report will be gradual. In fact, the projected rise in the prices of all goods included in the gross national product is forecast to be 43 percent in 1970-only fractionally lower than the rise of 4.7 percent in 1969.

For the long run, the first Nixon Economic Report is outstanding in sharply raising the question of where the resources will come from if future public needs are to be served. The Nixon administration has thrown down a challenge to its opponents to come out for higher taxes to pay for any new programs they propose.

This is fair enough. There will not be resources to deal with important public needs unless the people of this country are willing to raise the necessary taxes and to get rid of wasteful military or civilian government programs. The President's Economic Report deserves credit for focusing public attention on the basic issue. It may succeed in its objective of raising the level of public debate. But the President has an additional responsibility to propose and promote the hard choices that must be made if this issue is to be resolved in the broad public interest.

The legal establishment in America, which ought best to understand this menace, has a special responsibility for exposing the ting consequences of momentary political hysteria.

Not since corresive notions of "national security" came to prevail in the 1950s, bearing with them loyalty oaths, witch-hunts and Joe McCarthy, has there been anything like the hysterical spree in which Democrats and Republicans alike, with approving nods from the Nixon administration, have tried to be (in Sen. Sam Ervin's phrase): "... A Lone Dissent

First, the Senate-despite amendments supported in vain by men so disparate as Sen. Ervin, of Michigan, Roward Kernedy of Massachusetts, and Charles Goodell of New York—annovad one dissenting vote an omnibus anti-crime bill that limits the Fourth Amendment, erodes the Fifth, threatens the Eighth and in numerous other ways combats crime by assaulting constitutional

Next the Senate-with Thomas Dodd of Connecticut waving around what he said was $3,000 worth of marijuana, the possession of which could have put him away for years if he had not had the immunity of the Senate floor—passed a drug control bill that granted police the right to burst into any premises without warning if a judge could be persuaded that such a warning would result in the destruction of evidence.

This is a flagrant legislative example of the philosophy that the end justifies the means—catching the criminal validates any invasion of the rights supposedly guaranteed to all people. How long will it be, as a result, before agents come bursting without warning into the houses of political dissidents, contending under this law that any other procedure would have resulted in the destruction of pamphlets. documents and the like needed by

Because of the festering Arab-Israeli war, great emotion has been stirred by the French arms dealparticularly because it is so immense for tiny Libya. But arms are the only valid diplomatic currency in the present Arab world and Nasser himself has been urging some Arab leaders to buy French instead of Russian and allow elbow room for maneuver. Arms are in fact being spent for access to Arab oil supplies, free of Soviet marketing control and to prevent the Soviet fleet from extending its strategic influence westward. Oil is an especially tricky subject and there is insufficient national control by Western governments over the private com-panies dealing in that commodity. Despite nuclear power, the West's evolving industrial civilization relies more and more heavily on petroleum fuel and lubricants. It has been subjected to successful pressure by Arab sheikhs owning the fields but relying on others to develop them. At one time the West retained access by passing out money; now it passes out arms. The trouble with this currency is that it reflects immediately on the Arab-Israeli military balance and inflames possibilities of more fighting. More importantly, the administration has still to deal realistically with the impact of the sum total of collective bargaining on our inflationary economy. Workers cannot be expected to moderate wage demands at the expense of living standards while prices and profits remain un-restrained. Employers cannot absorb increasing costs arising from collective bargaining without protecting profit margins.

The administration is concerned about this, but its remedy is fiscal and monetary restraint. This means higher interest rates, tighter credit, a diminution of the money supply, higher taxes, a reduction in governmental expenditures, a substantial budget surplus and higher levels of unemployment.

I am not reassured by statistics showing that the gross national product is slowing. These figures are accompanied by reports of price increases in key commodities, wage increases and growing lay-offs in important industries. Only last week the Commerce Department reported that food prices went up

Feb. 2, 1895 NEW YORK-There was a disgraceful fight in the House of Representatives today between Mr. Heard, of Missouri, and Colonel W.C.P. Brekinridge. NEW YORK (NYT).—in 1960 there were 15; in 1964 there 79: and last year a record number of 224 teenagers in New York City shot heroin into their veins and died

Of this number, 55 were 16 or younger. It was the first year in the city's history that anyone under the age of 15 died from heroin use. Specifically, there was one 12-year-old, a 13-year-old, three 14-year-olds and fifteen 15-year-olds.

Nobody is quite sure how it happening or why. But there seems little doubt that children black white and Puerto Rican, rich, poor and in-between are becoming increasingly attracted

The involvement of the very young was never more apparent than last week, when police arrested three boys—one of them only 11 years old—on suspicion of being heroin peddlers. Police then arrested a 39-year-old man, Victor Santiago, and accused him of employing boys from 11 to 15 years of age as sellers of heroin and other drugs.

Across Social Lines

It was clear that the involvement was cutting across social and ethnic lines. Isabel Salazar, the 12-year-old daughter of a prominent East Side psychiatrist, was found on Wednesday, dazed and bleary eyed in a West Side apartment building after a three-day drug binge. The girl said she sees people who look like ghosts and dots and said this of her habit: "I take them—little blue pills.

Nixon's Daring 'Game Plan' For the Economy

WASHINGTON (NYT). President Nixon and his Council of Economic Advisers outlined last week an almost daring "game plan" for eco-nomic strategy in 1970. If it works, not only will the economy look a good deal bet-ter toward the end of the year but also Republican chances for election should be enhanced. If it does not work, everyone will know and recognize the failure in the form of either a serious rise in unemployment or a fail-ure to make visible progress

By Edwin L. Dale Jr.

The game plan calls for an essentially flat economy in the first half of the year, making three quarters in all, then a resumption of a "moderately quicker pace" in the last half. The crucial gamble is stated in first Economic Report to Congress that a more robust sec-ond half would be consistent with continued progress in re-ducing the rate of inflation.

No Alternative

In a sense, the Economic Report argued that there was really no alternative to the strategy.

The President said:

"There is a question whether the real rate of output can long remain essentially flat without more severe consequences than we have so far experienced. Until now the unemployment rate has remained low, partly because employers have retained workers despite growing signs of sluggishness in sales. However, they may be unwilling to do this for long with profits

The Council of Economic Advisers spelled out why inflation could continue to slow all through the year, even though economic growth was resumed in the second half. The reasoning was that after three quarters with no growth, the econwould have ample slack capacity-idle machines and some idle labor-which "places a downward pressure on the rate of the inflation." This rate of the inflation." This situation is known as a "gap" between the economy's everrising potential to produce and its actual production.

Given a gap, when demand picks up "moderately" again, the effect will be to "call forth put, not in the price level." There is some precedent for this in the early 1960s. It actually worked that way. But the "gap" then, including unemployment, was a lot wider than anything the council projects for 1970 and 1971.

In any case the council con-

"The growth of the Gross National Product has already been slowed to a rate which although temporarily necessary is lower than needs to be sustained for long in order to achieve significant disinflation. Therefore we can tolerate a moderate rise in the rates of increase in G.N.P. and of real output without reviving inflation and should have such a rise in order to avoid mounting unemployment."

How to Do It? If it is assumed that the strategy is a workable one with a fair chance of success, than is it to be carried out? First, the Economic Report disclosed, without much detail, that the President will propose this week a budget with expenlion and receipts at $202.1 hil-lion, for a modest surplus of $1.3 billion. If the budget works out as planned, including reasonable cooperation from Congress, this means that Federal fiscal policy will be moderately -but only moderately-restric tive for the next 18 months. counting the small surplus of $1.5 billion now estimated for the current fiscal year.

Second, and most important, this kind of fiscal policy should allow the Federal Reserve Board to start relaxing what the President called "overly long and overly severe" monetary restraint. This is the key to the game plan.

At his news conference Friday, the President made his feelings plain. Noting that he had produced a "firm" budget surplus, he said he hoped the time is coming" when the Federal Reserve could move toward less restraint. By mysterious processes that are not fully understood, such a mild switch in Federal Reserve policy is likely to lead later in the year to growth in total demand. It is a delicate operation. The Council of Economic Advisers said policy must be "cautious and tentative and feel its way along." But it is clear that the cutting edge of economic policy in 1970 is the Federal Reserve, which has a new chairman, Arthur F. Burns.

Mideast Conflict on Several Levels

If any political event interested the Israelis last week, it was the statement by President Nixon to a gathering of Jewish organization leaders in Washington. Reaffirming American support for Israel, Mr. Nixon said the United States was "prepared to supply military equipment necessary to support the efforts of friendly governments, like Israel's, to defend the safety of their people."

The President amplified on these remarks at his news conference Friday, saying: "We are neither pro-Arab nor pro-Israel. We are pro-peace. We are for security for all nations in that area." Indicating concern over the French decision to sell 100 or more jets to Libya, he said the Israelis' request for additional American arms would be considered in the light of "the threats to them from states in the area. . . That decision will be made within the next 30

Dayan's Reaction

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, asked if he thought this represented any change in American policy, replied that he will know better when Washington makes up its mind on an Israeli request made four months ago for more arms. Although the Nixon statement fundamentally represented nothing new, his reasons for making it attracted speculation here. Some suggested that he was repairing links with Israel that think we can do it."

pression of respiration and a drastic lowering of blood pressure. Others have died from hepatitis from dirty needles, from tetanus, and from bacterial endocarditis, an infection of the valves of the heart. Still other addicts, of course, have been shot while attempting rob-

But somehow, the urgency of is all did not become apparent to many people until children

The most publicized case was that of Walter Vandermeer, a 12-year-old Harlem boy, who died last Dec. 14 and became the youngest addict-fatality ever to be recorded in the city. His problems went deeper than the attention he got from the institutions supposedly charged with caring about such

The Vandermeer case has be-

Embroiled in Acrimony

What constitutes an epidemic may be arguable, but what is happening to heroin users in New York is not so arguable. But the question of what to do is embroiled in the worst kinds therapy.

New Issue Total at $182 Million; Pall Falls on Convertible Sector

By Condon Bakstansky

PARIS, Feb. 1.—Total new made for the coupon payments. On Friday, Commonwealth was refusing to comment on probond issues announced in ne first month of the new ear came to $182 million, up mewhat from the $107 million December, but well below the 108 million raised in January,

The tally, from Krediethank uxembourgeoise, points up ng 1970 market. For one, all pe issues announced were deominated in dollars. For anther only two U.S. firms— continental Telephone and cooper Laboratories — were mong the eight money-raisers, nd only two of the issues, totalng $37 million, were convert-

The one U.S. convertible, a nall, $7 million offering from noper, was priced at par last seek with a coupon of 7 per-ent, as indicated by the manpers, but a conversion price f $22 a share—for a discount Fover 6 percent on the stock rice on the pricing day. Cooper ock held at around $34 bid I last week in the over-theonter market. But there was a pall hang-

Market sources say the Eupean paying agent received ord last week from Commonealth's principal paying agent

the matter. Reports from the United States had it that liquidation of some assets was meet the payment and a source close to the company said that the cash was "on its way." A spokesman for Investors Overseas Services, which managed the issue, said IOS "can-not speak for Commonwealth" but that "as far as we know, (the coupon) will be paid on

Commonwealth United has run into a spate of troubles this year, resulting in a re-cently-lifted Securities and Exchange Commission ban on trading in its shares and a still-effective American Stock Exchange trading ban, Among other things, the California conglomerate reported a $22.6 million loss in the first six months of 1969 and failed to Day $185,000 in dividends due Sept. 30 on convertible prefer-red shares. Payment of the semi-annual coupon on the Eurobond would come to about

IOS and its affiliates have provided Commonwealth with some $50 million in investment and loans this year, and SEC intervention has caused Commonwealth to reduce in several es the size of payments to the IOS group.

Whether the coupon payment is made or not, the psy-chological fallout from the New York market weakness and the Commonwealth quastion combined to send Eurobond convertible prices down three to five points over the week, with (Confinued on Page 18, Col. 6)

Stock Prices on Wall Street Hit 6-Year Low, Interest Rates on Bonds Soar, Prices Fall

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (NYT). -There was gloom-but no pento-in Wall Street last week as the stock market continued its winter plunge to the lowest levels in more than six years. The stock averages sustained their worst weekly losses in six months and the bond market suffered another period of erosion, with interest rates soaring and prices slipping.

Still there was no massive ties, but rather a queasy lack of interest in making new com-

The stock market declin moderately every day last week and wound up with a net loss of more than 31 points in the Dow Jones industrial stock insettlement of the long General Electric labor strike, with a to improve market sentiment. However, it is conceded that the outlook could change suddenly. There need only be evidence that money conditions were being eased-and a number of economists and financial experts say the time is not far distant when such a shift WILL DOCUME.

Some say money will be easier and interest rates lower within a month or six weeks. But, if inflation persists, that view might be only wishful thinking. Divided View

While economists such as Walter Heller, Gardner Ackley, Martin Gainsbrugh, James O'Leary, Pierre Rinfret and A.

Gilbert Heebner all predicted easing of credit before long, the view is by no means mani-Armold C. Schumacher.

Amex, Over-Counter Issues Take Worst Beating in Months

By Alexander R. Hammer NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (NYT).-Prices on the American Stock Exchange and on the Over-the-Counter market took their worst beating in months last

Most losses in both markets averaged one or two points with some issues losing three-points or more. There were large sell-

Brokers continued to attribute most of the easiness to the apparent reluctance of the Federal Reserva Board to loosen its grip on the money supply. Other factors that contributed to the market's weakness were the increasing number of lower corporate earnings reports and Most of the insurance issues slumped in fairly active trading. Hartford Fire lost 5, Acina and U.S. Fildelity each cased 3 1/2, Travelers was down 2 and Monarch Capital dioped

In the bank group, the Bank of America dropped 3 1/2, Crocker National fell 2 1/2, the First National Bank of Boston was off 2 and Wells Fargo eased 1 1/8 poin .

The volume leader for the week on the American Ex-change was Wahash Magnetic, which rose 1 1/8 to 26 on a Co., for instance, said last week that recent events—a move toward deficits in the federal budget and the contioned demand for funds from bushess -- raise a question shout the timing of any move by the money managers to moderate their grip on credit

He said he foresaw little prospect of lower interest rates before the last half of 1970—it may be closer to December then Jone."

Recent commentary by market experts is laced with concen and caution. "It's hard to be optimistic at this time," said Monte Gorcon, vice-president of Bache & Co. The incentive to buy stocks is lacking. I think the market will bump along for the next two to six weeks around the 735-740 level in the Dow."

Martin Goodfriend, a vice-president of Singer, Kaplan, Rippel & Busby, said he felt the market had not yet reached bottom, but at current levels there are many good sound investments "where selling pressure has not been justified

Rarnings Reports

The effects of the economic slowdown became evident in corporate profits reports. A tabulation of the results of 413 companies showed combined net income of $3.56 billion for the final quarter of 1969, down 13 percent from their aggregate earnings of $3.61 billion in the final three months of 1968 but 14 percent above 1968's third-quarter net of $3.11 bil-

It should be noted, however, that the decline in the lates period reflects the sharp 1 percent drop in fourth-quarte profits of the glant General

Motors Corp. to $510 million from $695 million the year be-

In addition to General Motors, some of the major corporations that reported lower fourth-quarter results were Jersey Standard, du Pont, Mc-Donnell Douglas, Gulf Oil, In-diana Standard, General Dynamics, North American Rockwell California Standard, Contimental Oil, Shell and Monsanto. Some of these, however, had higher annual profits for Offsetting those that showed declines were some with higher fourth-quarter earnings. These hern, Westinghouse, 3-M, Cities Service, American Home Products, Philip Morris, Interna-tional Paper, Pitiston, Union Oil, Air Reduction and Johns-Manville.

Economic Indicators

Meanwhile the week's amply of economia and business statistics continued in the adverse pattern that has prevailed for months. They showed that the economy was still slipping, inflation still strang.

There were declines in durable goods orders and in the leading economic indicators for December, while the automotive industry unnounced a rash of plant closedowns and employee layoffs for January and February.

The December report on durable-goods business was par-ticularly bearish, commirming many earlier indications that the economy has been expling The month's drop in this pivotal business yardstick was 4.9 percent to a total of $29.5 bil-

(Continued from Page 9) month was the index of leading economic indicators. Four of the eight components declined and four rose, but the index was off 0.3 percent to 151.3 percent of the 1963 average. In recent years the index has always declined before re-

Equally indicative of the pressures in the economy was the Treasury's financing cement last week. federal government made history by devising a financing with the most advantageous terms-for investors-since the presidency of John Adams at the end of the 18th century.

The Treasury, which must refund $6.66 billion of bonds maturing in February and March, decided to offer holders of the securtles the opportunity to turn them in for any of three new note issues. They are an 18-month 81/4 percent note; a three and one-half-year 81/8 percent note, and a sev-en-year 8 percent note.

These are the Treasury's first offering of 8 percent notes in modern times. It has recently sold bills that yield that much or more, but with shorter maturities. The Treasury has also sold securities of federal agencies at rates as high as 8.9 percent.

In 1859 and 1860, as the U.S. was moving toward the Civil War, the Treesury sold oneyear notes at rates as high as 12 percent. But for another government 8 percent security with a longer maturity one must go back to 1800-a time when the U.S. was fighting another undeclared war.

Borrowing is showing no sign of decreasing despite all the news of economic slowdown. Ten days ago American Tele-phone and Telegraph shocked the bond market by announce ing its record-setting $1.57 billion debenture offering for this spring, and bond prices have been going down ever since. Last week came two other big corporate financing announcements that also weighed heavily on the financial markets outlook One was Chrysler's plans to sell $150 million of debt securities and the other was a Jersey Standard plan to raise between $400 million and 3450 million through a rights offering of additional capital stock, a record financing for the

These major financings, follosving a recent blg offering by Ford, dismayed some investment managers.

One remarked: "Where are the financial planners? How can these huge organizations be so lousy in their financial planning and so illiquid that they come into the market at the depths of it and kick it in ing process."

The impact of the AT & T announcement was quite signifi-cant. Before it was made, some Ohio Bell bonds were traded in the open market at the teeth? It's a very debilitata price to yield 8.51 percent, but last Tuesday an Indiana Bell issue was priced to yield 8.30 percent-and the offering did not attract investors quickly. Other major financial, business and economic developments of the week included:

The Eurobond Market

Market observers are expect-ing more entries in this range, in no small part a result of the sourcess of the convertible sector and the still-heavy cash needs of credit-pinched firms internationally. The question is whether 9 percent at a discount is the next move. Among special cases vying for the European investment dollar is a $50 million, 15-year issue announced by Italy's Ente Nazionale per l'Energia Elettrica one of the now common "Italodollar" issues aimed mainly at-the Italian investor unable because of government controls to participate in the higheryield Euro-market.

Some of both the $400 million-plus Standard Oil Co. New Jersey, and the $1.5 billion American Telephone and Tele-graph U.S. domestic convertible issues are also expected to wind up with European investors, with around $60 million of the Jersey Standard total committed to Propesn underwriters.

And on the straight equity side, a tiny, $1.5 million issue expected at about $4 a share, is planned by Euromedico, a Luxembourg - based financing firm for Equipement Hospitalier de France SA.

McCracken Foresees Relief In Price Rise Late in '70

By Eileen Shanahan WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 TT).—President Nixon's chief momic adviser said yesterday at the pace of price increases ould fall to 3.5 percent a year the end of 1970 and that rise in unemployment milting from the administrain's anti-inflationary policies ould not be large. Paul W. McCracken, the sirman of the Council of gnomic Advisers, added these ined in the annual Economic port of the President, which made public Friday.

Details on the administrain's anti-inflation program II become available tomorrow, hen the President's budget for he 1971 fiscal year is sent to Measure of Inflation Dr. Arthur F. Burns was orn in yesterday as chairman the Federal Reserve. Board in the President said at the anted "lower interest rates illiam McChesney Martin. A rate of inflation of 3.5 permt in the final quarter of is year would compare with rate of 4.7 percent for the me period of 1969. The figes that Mr. McCracken used a news conference yester-ty were those that measure e change in prices for the stire national output—a sta-stic known to economists as ie deflater for the gross tional product.

In general, economists conder it a better measure of the illationary trend in the econmy than the Consumer Price nder, which measures price langes only for those articles nd services bought by middlecome city families. For 1970 as a whole, the ad-inistration predicted that rice increases for the entire ational product would average 3 percent. For 1969, the averge was 4.7 percent. Mr. McCracken reaffirmed hat had been said about uninployment in the President's conomic Report—namely, that would rise somewhat during the year as the anti-inflationary policies being followed by the government take hold But "I do not see any large rise in unemployment," McCracken said. Under questioning, he agreed that he would consider a rise in the unemployment rate to 5 percent of the work force "pretty large.' Both the Economic Report and Mr. McCracken pointedly avoided giving any figures on the expected level of the un-

"The objective of economic policy is not to produce unemployment," Mr. McCracken said. But he said that at "certain stages of the economy" it was necessary to follow policies that might produce some un-employment. The allusion was clearly to the current inflation and the administration's commitment to stop it.

It has already been disclosed that Mr. Nixon's budget will show a surplus of $1.3 billion, with total outlays of $300.8 billion. The administration considers this "a very lean budget," Mr. McCracken said. "We are taking about as tough a stance on fiscal [budgetary] policy as is possible to take," he said.

1st Negro to Take Seat on New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (WP).— Joseph Louis Searles 3d, who was proposed Priday for membership on the New York Stock Exchange is slated to become the first Negro ever to hold a seat on the nation's most important security market.

The resignation of Mr. Searles, 30-year-old bachelor, from the city administration was accepted Priday by Mayor John V. Lindsay, who described him as "an invaluable zide."

$20,000 a Year Since September, 1968, Mr. Searles had served as $20,000-a-year director of local business development in the New York City Eco nomic Development Administration. MR. DITHERS, YOUR WIFE CALLED AND SHE SAID YOU'RE A LOW-DOWN SNAKE IN THE GRASS AND SHE'S GOING TO BREAK YOUR ASKED ME TO DELLVER PAT LITTLE NECK WHEN YOU GET HOME

By Alan Truscott

In the diagramed deal, played in the 1965 world championship, there was an element of mystery about the auction.

East's opening bid of one club was a Roman System bid showing 12 to 16 points and a balanced hand. South's double showed general strength, and West's one-diamond bid was negative. When this was doubled by North, West retreated into one spade. When North cue-bid two spades, suggesting that North-South bid to game, some con-fusion resulted. The late Ken-neth Koustam, sitting South, momentarily forgot that West had bid spades and took his partner's two-spade bid as natural.

He . "raised" his partner's spades, apparently making a return cue-bid, and North hid four hearts, feeling it was time somebody made a natural bid for the partnership. South assumed that this was a second suit, and naturally returned to four spades.

When West doubled, North passed, presumably in the belief that his partner held a massive spade suit. If South had passed, the result would have been a disaster-probably an 1,100point penalty. But Konstam finally had misgivings: he asked for a review of the auction, uncovered his error and corrected the contract to four no-trump. East could hardly be blamed for doubling four no-trump, but the contract could not be defeated. West led a club, and oneen was allowed to win. East continued with the king. and the declarer took three club tricks followed by five diamond tricks. He could not be pre-vented from making one trick in each major suit for a total of

MEET the Devlins, an incredible family like most, so ordinary on the surface, so flawed beneath, who are gathered in their aged mother's house for her long day's dying.

It is "not a very comfortable house and not a very happy one, either nor, for that matter, is it very sad, which might seem unusual under the circumstances. It is, however, unrelentingly real, which sums up what is right as well as what is wrong with this first novel. winner of a respected Hough-ton Mifflin literary fellowship SWBIO.

Consider this bit of dialogue: "I have an idea. Why not let me go out, an hour or so before you want to eat, and get the colesiaw and potato salad from a delicatessen." "Homemade is so much

"Give it a thought, anyway." Real? Save us, yes. Banal? Unfiinchingly so, as banal as the verbal signals most of us exchange much of the time, perhaps. But as literary short-hand it deftly limns the enormous ordinariness of people for whom cliches supply the novocame against the dull aches in their lives, people who find themselves saying: "It's a sin to let good food go to waste" to avoid expressing what gnaws away at their innards: their own small failures of nerve and of love.

Who are these people, so crippled yet so quiet? They are the adult children of the comatose Mrs. Devlin, a woman of such piety—but little religion— that her house seems awash in holy water, of such moral obtuseness that she could never see the little ruins she was making of her children's lives ruins that the children themselves only vaguely sense.

Two of her daughters are nuns whose religion is insufficient buttress against the distresses of this world. (Both are on Librium or, when life gets rougher, Butasol — they're a little stronger.") One son is a priest, Father Phil, who wanted to be a missionary but is instead a alightly overweight, perspiring professional man presiding over what seems to be a rest home for spiritually and physically alling Jesuits.

To give Miss Cullinan her due, these lugubrious details are set down with considerable skill, especially in Mrs. Devlin's own "autobiographical" account OWD of her triumphant road to glory, set in the middle of the book as "The Story of a Mother."

It read like a fairy tale, a sister-in-law observes, "the clear lines and brilliant colors of the surfaces; tragedy and triumph and nothing in between, nothing but the bold sweep of events past all that was day to day or moment to moment, past boredom, fritation, triviality, past doubt and disorder avithe effort to understand But the proof of a fatry. was in the ending—bappily e

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (NYT). -The American Electric Power System has committed itself to the largest single generating unit in the history of the electric power industry.

Donald C. Cook, president of American Electric Power, and Gov. Arch A. Moore of West Virginia, who made a joint announcement at Charleston, W. Va., pointed out that the addition of the 1.3 million-kilowatt unit to the John E. Amos plant near Charleston would make that plant the world's largest privately owned gener-

Mary Blume-

In your mother's love, life makes you a promise at the dawn of life that it will never keep.

Romain Gary.

Melina Mercouri, after aging, in "La Promesse de l'Aube."

PARIS.-Melina Mercouri and her husband, Jules Dassin, are currently making their seventh film together: "Promise at Dawn," based on Romain Gary's memoir of his mother, Nins

Nina was a small-time Russian-Jewish actress and a big-time Mom. A courageous battler and an expert charmer, she decided early on that the world would be her son's oyster . Romain, she outrageously decreed, would become a French diplomat, a wartime hero, and a prize-winning novelist. The odd thing is that he did become all three.

"Nina," says Mr. Dassin, the film's producer-director-scenarist, "has moments that go from extreme grace to real trooper vulgarity. And at no time, at any second, does she have a doubt."

Chagall Dansant

"Nina," says Miss Mercouri, who loves her. "has imagination, she has wings to fly. She is a Mother Courage with fantasy and humor. She dies with panache, with a smile, with coquetterie. She is funny. She is," she added, "a megalo-

Miss Mercouri has wanted to play Nina since she read "Promise at Dawn" seven years ago. "I always wanted to do something for the Jewish people. At that time Julie was hoping to film 'The Last of the Just' and I said if ever I did a Jewish thing I wouldn't want the concentration camps, the agony. I would want a Chagall, the survival. A Chagall dansant."

The atmosphere on the set of the Chagall dansant has been properly tragicomic. Mr. Dassin took a terrible fall at the start of filming, in which he fractured both feet, and there were such minor agonies as several costumes burning up in Rome where they were being made ("We cried a lot," says Theoni Aldredge, the costume designer).

There is also a lot of hugging and kissing and, in Miss Mercouri's dressing an authentic agora atmosphere room, an authentic agora atmosphere (indeed, executive producer Joseph E. Levine, president of Avco Embassy pic-tures, has been known absently to refer "Promise at Dawn" as "that Greek picture"). Each member of the crew will be seen in a tiny role because Mr. Dassin likes to see faces he loves in his Shooting began in Nice and will soon move from Paris to Leningrad and Cracow, Poland. Miss Mercouri spends much time knitting with furious con-centration because she has been told it is relaxing. She makes endless red scarves for the crew. "They laugh at me because it's the only thing I can make,"

she says. "I have knitted kilometers." Since she is a mother seen through her young son's eyes, Nina is an outsized creature who seems to suffocate.

Romain with love and responsibility. Not so, says Miss Mercouri.

Women's Fights

"I come from Greece and such mothers are not unique. Because of the poverty, the illiteracy, the child is never treated as a child. In Greece a child would never say, 'My mother's demodée, I have no dialogue with her. There is always a dialogue, even if it is a fight. My mother and I had women's fights when I was five years old.

"I see how the others treat Francois [François Raffoul, a nine-year-old who plays young Romain] and how I treat him. Dassin speaks to him as a child . . . At that moment young François blew into Miss Mercouri's dressing room and chatted about how badly they had played an earlier scene. Mostly, discuss politics. François is a both role Melina Mercouri has had, and the best one since "Never on Sunday." She has just been asked to replace Katharine Hepburn on Broadway in "Coco," and while she is pleased by the honor she is not sure she will do it. She has been devoting her energy and magnificent courage to the Greek resistance since the colonels took over and it is clear that acting, these days, takes second place.

"I will cry for the biggest part," she says, "but when I get it I will run away."

Three Ages

As Nina she appears at three ages: mid-30s, mid-40s, and mid-60s. The 60s, which scared her most, have turned out to be her favorite.

"I had the same impression when I was in Crete-when I saw the old people there, I was less afraid of death. Ninaat 60 still has things to do, she is still beautiful. It comforts me as a woman, I have a quietness in my heart that it is not so terrible to be old. In addition to acting, Miss Mercouri on the way from Poland to France, the promised land. The French version had been recorded when, with little warning, Miss Mercouri was told she would have to record the tricky new English lyrics. C'est freaky," she said of the first take. The job, accomplished with remarkable good cheer, was hard and rushed. Before each take, Miss Mercouri tore off a scrap of paper to knead in her fingers as she sang. Soon, there was a small heap of paper scraps at her feet.

"Relax, Melina," said the composer, Georges Delerue, with a tight smile. "To relax," answered Melina, "you have to come from America, the strongest country in the world. How can you be Greek and relax?"

PEOPLE:

Besides the ring, groom David Alfred Frest brought along some extra hardware to his wedding Saturday in Blackpool, England. He was wearing handcuffs. Detectives took Frost, 21, into custody on a theft charge just 15 minutes before his schedul-ed wedding. Good lads, they drove him to the registrar's office in a police car, witnessed the ceremony, let him kiss his bride, Jean Humble, and whisk-ed him off to jail.

A more normal and formal wedding Saturday in Washington was that of Nancy Hardin, daughter of Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Clifford Hardin, to Douglas Rogers, son of Secretary of State and Mrs. Wil-Ham P. Rogers. Among the guests, President and Mrs. Nixon. The President didn't kiss the bride, explaining: "I 'never kiss the bride-except my own. It's sort of an old Quaker custom." Nixon daughter Tricia couldn't attend, she has mea-* * *

The court found only the cops to blame and ordered the Swedish government to pay for repairs to two automobiles that crashed after two policemen in Halmstad waved two lanes of crossing traffic into an intersection.

Malcolm Eckley, of Ludlow, England, the champion pig raiser who contends that his nightly serenades improve the breed, has sold a white boar to Henri Cuvullier, president of the French White Breed Society, for £1,000 ($2,400), believed to be the largest price ever paid for a single export pig. The pigs' favorite tunes are "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Take the World in Your Hands" and "Galway Bay." How does Eckley know? They are the ones he sings to them.

The office of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, and the man himself, lived up to his insistence that his private life is his private business and had no comment on the visit of, the party he gave for, or the departure of his guest, singer Barbra Strekand.

French actress Catherine Deneuve has cleared a legal hurdle to start divorce proceedings against English photographer David Railey.
